

Message from the President

If you're interested in spending some quality time with your grandkids this summer, look no further than your alma mater. Grandparents University returns to WCU for three days of fun and learning, June 25-27.

You and your grandkids can explore campus through virtual reality and 3D mapping, produce and star in a newscast, take a trip to outer space by way of the Sandra Mather Planetarium, test your mettle in an adventure that includes an optional rope course, and much more.

Now in its 8th year, Grandparents University will give your grandkids – ages 7 to 13 -- a sneak peek at what it's like to be Golden Ram. You'll enjoy comfortable accommodations in our newest residence halls; share meals together in Lawrence Dining hall, and attend classes all across campus.

And what would college life be without co-curricular activities? You and the grands can compete in the Disney Trivia Jeopardy Tournament, plus you can meet Remi, our police dog and Rammy, our mascot.

New this year is the option to be a commuter if you don't wish to stay in the residence halls.

Sue and I can't wait for our grandchildren to be old enough to attend Grandparents University with us. In the meantime, I look forward to seeing you at this year's Grandparents University.
